On the 25th inst. at 9 A. M., Verdun was attacked by the Prussians, 10,000 strong, commanded by the Crown Prince of Saxony. After three hour's fighting, during which 300 shells were thrown into the city, the Prussians were repulsed with considerable loss.

The following is official: The Prussians, under the Prince Royal, have been seen going towards Srippes. The German forces in the Department of the Aube having abandoned their encampment, are marching on Sommesay? Twenty five thousand Prussians have recently passed Jarneville Verangeville, going in the direction of Nancy and Montierender. Twenty five thousand Prussian cavalry have passed through Chalons, going toward Epernay. Pfalsburg and Strasbourg still hold out.

Mr. Seward—Columbia River Lumber Co.—Boy Drowned—The Annie Mooney Mystery—Accident to a Newsboy

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—Mr. Seward anxious for rest, and receiving an almost unlimited number of invitations, is obliged to decline nearly all. He has declined an invitation from the Chinese merchants to consult with them and accept hospitalities; also one from the Anti Chinese Committee to go through the Chinese quarter of this city in search of nuisances. He was not able to visit the British frigate Zealous to-day, but is dining with General Schofield and Admiral Winslow this afternoon. He will probably be obliged to also decline the reception at Oakland to-morrow.

The Columbia River Lumber Manufacturing Company have elected Trustees as follows: J. B. Knapp, President and General Agent; N. W. Spaulding, Vice-President; S. W. Backus, Secretary and Agent in San Francisco; D. W. Grant, Treasurer, and L. F. Baker.

A boy named Baner, 7 years old, was drowned in a pond on the San Jose road yesterday, while wading after snipes.

There are now four small vessels on the berth for Iquiqui, Peru, all of which will carry barley as the bulk of cargo.

The mystery connected with the death of the girl Annie Mooney, at Brooklyn, Alameda county, is beginning to clear up. She has been traced from her parent's house all the way around by stage to Walnut creek and Martinez, and back to San Francisco by steamer. It appears that she applied for work at an intelligence office here before going to the hotel, and many now think she was insane from congestion of the lungs and inflamation of the brain and died from natural causes. Thus far no one is found to have been in her company during her trip. The excitement in Alameda county is intense, every conceivable rumor being started and most trifling details being caught up, enlarged and exaggerated.

Frank Martha, newsboy, while skylarking with his companions near the Bulletin office this evening, fell against a broken window, severing the tendons and veins of the left wrist and nearly bled to death before surgical assistance arrived.

The British war steamer Chanticleer sailed for Panama.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

The Bark Carlotta Beached at Neah Bay—Cargo Damaged.

SEATTLE, August 29.—The bark Carlotta of Seabeck in entering the Straits of Fuca last Thursday, drifted on to Duncan rock in a calm and stove a hole in her bottom near the keel. It took all hands at the pumps to keep her afloat until they beached her at Neah Bay, where she now lies. She was loaded with general merchandise for ports on the Sound. The Captain expects to get her off, but the cargo is nearly all in a damaged condition.

A NEW HARBOR DEFENSE.—Nothing like the mitrailleuse, the terrible new French artillery gun of which we now hear so much, was used in our civil war, and it is generally supposed that no attempt to construct such a weapon has ever been made on this side of the Atlantic. Nevertheless, there is now in the course of erection on the east side of New York bay a gun that will throw 800 five ounce balls a distance of two miles in one minute. The gun is circular in shape, and looks like two discs of iron plate some four feet in diameter. On one side is a funnel which conveys the balls through to the proper chamber without cessation of firing or diminution of speed. The muzzle projects upon the periphery of the circular machine, and can be elevated or depressed at the pleasure of the trunnion on which it rotates. The machine is so constructed that it may be worked either by manual labor or steam power, and when worked by the latter will throw shot or shell up to the weight of eight pounds, while only slightly diminishing the number thrown. In either case the shot may be red hot or cold. Those who have devised and constructed this gun believe it will compare favorably for destructiveness with the mitrailleuse or any similar artillery.—N. Y. Times.

Sacrificed by Imbecility

In France in the present crisis the Emperor is totally forgotten But every Frenchman is for France The Empire said the great statesman Thiers in a recent speech is henceforth out of the question there can be no Empire without an Emperor To this state of events a Republic must inevitably succeed It is but a few weeks since Thiers stood boldly in his place in the Corps Legislatif and braved the indignation of those who were so forward in plunging the country into war The time is ill chosen he declared France ought not now to go to war And in the face of the wildest uproar he intimated his want of confidence in the French arms under the existing circumstances A little later the soldiers had all gone to the frontier where the Emperor followed them The Empress on her return from Cherbourg at a dinner at St Cloud, toasted the ex minister "To M Thiers to whom we are indebted for the fortifications of Paris a work which now enables us to send to the frontier 100 000 men who otherwise could not have been spared" The soldiers who went so gaily to the field have been beaten, the ministry which weakly consented to the war is overthrown and worse than the worst imaginings of M Thiers has come to pass Unlike the first Napoleon who even at St Helena was idolized by the French nation the present Emperor has no power to animate and inspirit the people He can create no enthusiasm and it even looks as if he could not organize and make use of the superabundant military resources of the country France has been plunged into war on groundless and unjustifiable pretexts and she is now being sacrificed by the imbecility of her Government The Second Empire not less than the First is the result of the Great Revolution Is France to be punished still further for the crimes which she then committed in the name of liberty? It would seem so If France is to recover her prestige and preserve her honor and her territory, new men must be called to the head of affairs and the whole nation must put forth a superhuman effort like that which saved France and baffled her enemies in 1792

Nature of Chinese Contracts

The following translation of a contract under which a Chinaman who has come to this country agrees to pay back the money advanced to enable him to come has been furnished to the Boston Advertiser

Lives in Canton Macao City surname Chee, name Lung Has heard about California very good place to make money and he would like very much to go there but he needs expenses for the passage. Therefore, he has gone and asked Coon Sing to pay his passage from China If Coon Sing pays, Chee Lung will stay in California anywhere that Coon Sing shall tell him and work on a railroad or in a factory one year to get means to pay Coon Sing back $120 If a year passes, and the money is not paid, then he will pay every month 2½ per cent. interest If Chee Lung die, then nothing is to be paid to Coon Sing

(Signed) Tung Lung (security)
Chee Lung (with his own hand)

(Dated) Ninth year of Hung Chee, (the king's name). January 22, 1869

This contract is in substance like all those under which Chinese come to America It will be seen that it is simply a contract to repay, within a specified time after his arrival the money advanced for his passage Contracts of a similar kind have frequently been made by people in our Eastern States who wanted to come West. In Oregon to-day there are many men who came overland years ago, and who worked out on arriving here the amount advanced to enable them to come The Chinaman who comes here under these contracts is no slave, he is as free as any body. He simply owes the money he has borrowed to pay his passage, and is under an agreement to work it out This is all the foundation there is for the demagoguish claptrap about "the labor of heathen slaves" which Democratic orators and journals are so proficient in.

And comes a statement which we trust will afford relief to our agonized neighbor the Herald. That paper a few days ago was horrified to find a story in an exchange to the effect that "Col Morgan, a Radical State Senator in Mississippi, had married a dusky maid of Africa." This announcement was the subject of a leading editorial in the Herald wherein the "immoral and baneful tendencies of Radicalism" were descanted upon, with magniloquent pathos But now comes the San Francisco Bulletin with a statement from a brother of Col Morgan, who resides in that city, declaring that "there is not a word of truth in the marriage alleged to have taken place," and that "the story was concocted by the enemies of Col Morgan solely for purposes of defamation" We trust the Herald will obtain relief. Or will that paper be plunged still deeper in unhappiness on learning that a story which has furnished material for so many Democratic editorials is without foundation?

Railroads are not always so antagonistic to civilization as some people in Oregon whose organ the Herald is seem to imagine True they do interfere with the stage coach business and diminish the custom of way side taverns And then they carry a person through a journey with such rapidity as to give him only two hours ride for his money, instead of the whole day's ride which he used to get by stage coach for a sum but little larger But to offset these serious evils they double the value of real estate in every locality that is brought within their reach The above is slightly paraphrased from a California contemporary on the railroad question

The population of Marion county is considerably below the figures at which we had estimated it It is not probable now that the population of the State will exceed 90 000 Jo Lane stoutly asserted in Washington that we had this number fifteen years ago

A telegram says the national debt will be reduced ten millions during the month of August Really we shall pay the debt while the Democracy are declaring that it can never be done

The Crow Indians are divided into three bands or chieftaincies—the Mountain, Middle and River and, all told, number about 5 000 souls They claim as their "illahee" or hunting grounds all the country between the Gallatin Valley and the Powder river which embraces the best buffalo and general game country on the continent They are disposed to be peaceable but were all until the establishment of the Yellowstone Mission jealous of intrusion now however the Mountain Crows welcome the hunter and miner with smiles of friendship Their territory is constantly encroached on by surrounding tribes but though few in numbers they are noted warriors and have thus far been able to maintain their independence and defend their territory

A woman named Durgin, living near Helena, Montana, recently lost three fingers and had an arm dislocated at the shoulder by a mule running away which she was holding with a lariat wrapped around her hand

THE GREAT BATTLES

DETAILS OF THE BATTLES NEAR METZ ON THE 14TH 16TH AND 18TH [illegible] ON THE 18TH—TERRIBLE SLAUGHTER ON BOTH SIDES—THE FRENCH DRIVEN INTO METZ—THE TRIBUNE CORRESPONDENT TAKEN PRISONER BY THE FRENCH AND HIS ESCAPE—THE BATTLE OF THE 18TH

NEW YORK August 24 Following is a detailed account of Thursday's battle at Gravelotte which was received this morning in London from our special who witnessed the battle at headquarters and stood by the side of Bismarck and the King. The first real notion they had at Pont a Mousson where they found themselves on the 17th of the extent to which fighting had been going on Tuesday and Sunday last at the front was the coming in of the wounded At first it was thought they had been wounded in skirmishes, but on the 16th there were signs of the work being warm. On that evening, soldiers with ghastly wounds walked about the market place in Loncelles surrounded by eager groups of their newly arrived comrades This told a story of disaster Poor fellows it surely was galling to them to be borne away as they had been from the field without having hardly any result

I stood among these troops and the narrations of the men all amounted to their having been to confront a much larger force than their own and that their division had been cut up I was struck by the fact that though there was some dissatisfaction suggested by their tone of voice, I heard no word uttered by the narrators or listeners which accused any one They dwelt rather on the fact that they had dealt a heavy blow on the 14th and that though the Tenth Division had as an available organization been demolished, it had sold its life dearly

On the 17th the wounded of the preceding day began to pour into Pont a Mousson They were brought in on a long line of grain carts lying upon hay From my window which overlooked the main street and commanded a view of the market place I counted over 90 carts each holding an average of about ten men It was strange to see them as they passed amid files of French unable to conceal their joy on one hand and the Prussian soldiers on the other side

The streets began swarming with other wagons—all the wounded being the wearers of red trousers and now and then came a batch of unwounded prisoners At length came a carriage with a French General It was followed by a vast crowd of French and for a little time it seemed as if there might be a collision between the inhabitants and Prussians so earnest were the demonstrations of the people But it was now evident that the struggle was very serious at the front

At midnight or a little after on the 17th, all the trumpets for miles began to sound This was the first time we had been startled by such wild music Trumpet answered to trumpet through the little city For several days previously there had been almost perpetual marching of troops through the streets but now they tramped through every street and by way making between midnight and dawn a perpetual roar

Hastily dressing, I ran out into the dark and managed to get a seat on a wagon going in the direction of the front, which was now thought to be one or two miles beyond the village of Goise. The prisoners were looked upon with curiosity by the continuous line of German soldiers with whom we advanced but only one or two offensive cries towards the prisoners were heard

At Montotention on the Moselle about half way to Metz, I found vast bodies of cavalry, uhlans and hussars crossing the river by pontoon bridges and hurrying at the top of their speed towards Goize Hurrying my own steps I heard the first thunder of cannon, seemingly coming from the heart of a range of hills on the right

On our way we met some miles from Pont a Mousson a considerable batch of French

Passing through the village and ascending a high plain beyond, I found myself on a battle field strewn, as far as the eye could reach, with dead bodies In one or two parts of the field companies were still seen burying the dead chiefly Prussians The French, being necessarily buried last, were lying in vast numbers on the field A few of them were not dead

As I hurried on a splendid regiment of cavalry came on behind and when they reached the brow of the hill they broke out with a wild hurrah and dashed forward A few more steps and I gained the summit and saw the scene which had caused the cry, and seemed to thrill even their horses

It would be difficult to imagine a grander battle field From the hill to which I had been directed by good authority to come, the entire sweep of the Prussian and French centres could be seen, and a considerable portion of their wings The spot where I stood was fearful It was amid ghastly corpses, and burdened with the stench of dead horses, of which there were great numbers

I was standing on the battle field of the 16th On the left, stretched like a silver thread, lay the road to Verdun and to Paris It ran between lines of poplars, which stood against the horizon

On my left as far as eye could reach toward Metz, with all military regularity, strung the road like beads were the pretty villages, each with its church tower which, although they have separate names are really only a few hundred yards apart They are Mars la Tour, Flavigdt, and a little south of the road Vionotti, Resonville, and Gravelotte, which is divided into Great and Little Gravelotte

Owing to having come on foot rather than along the road, I arrived just as the battle waxed warm—that is about noon of the 18th At that time the King of Prussia was standing on the ground watching the conflict which had just begun Among them I recognized the King Bismarck, Gen Von Moltke, Prince Frederick Charles Prince Carl, Prince Albrecht Adjutant Krousky and Lieut Gen Sheridan, U S A was also present At this time the French were making the most desperate efforts to hold on to the last bit of the Verdun road that lies between Resonville and Gravelotte or that part of Gravelotte which in some maps is called St Mariol Desperate but unavailing, for every man in the French ranks had two to cope with, and their line was already beginning to waver

Soon it was plain that this wing of the French right was withdrawing to a new position This was swiftly taken up under cover of a continuous fire of their artillery from the heights beyond the village The movement was made in good order and the position was reached at 1 30 I believe nine military men out of ten would have pronounced it impregnable

When once this movement had been effected the French retreated from the pressure of the Prussian artillery fire, the Prussians as rapidly advancing

The battle-field was no longer at Resonville, but had been transferred and pushed forward to Gravelotte, the junction of the two branching roads to Verdun The fields in front of the village were completely covered by Prussian reserves and over it interminable lines of soldiers were marching in the wood, disappearing into the village This part of the battle field was more extensive than the first and brought the opposing forces into fearfully close quarters A peculiarity of it is that it consists of two heights intersected by a deep ravine, this woody ravine over one hundred feet deep and at the top some three hundred yards wide The side of the chasm next to Gravelotte where the Prussians stood is much lower than either side of which gradually ascended to a great height From their commanding eminence the French held their enemies fairly beneath them and poured upon them a scorching fire

The French guns were in a position far up by the Metz road hidden and covered among the trees There was not an instant's cessation of the roar of artillery Distinguishable among all was the curious grunting roll of the mitrailleur The Prussian artillery was posted up the north side being necessarily raised for an awkward half vertical fire

The hill where I stood commanded chiefly the conflict behind the village and to the south of it The Prussian reinforcements coming up on their right filed out of the Bois d Agneus and it was at that point as they marched on the field that I could perhaps get the best idea of the magnitude of the invading army now in the heart of France There was no break whatever for four hours in the march of the men out of that wood It seemed almost as if the killed and wounded revived and came back and marched forth again Birnam Wood advancing to Dunsinane was not a more ominous sight to Macbeth than these men of Gen Goeben's army shielded as they were by the woods until they were fairly within range and reach of their enemies

So the French must have felt for between four and five o'clock they concentrated upon that spot their heaviest fire, massing all their available guns and shelling the woods which covered the Prussians unremittingly their shots reached the Prussian lines then tore through them and though the men were steady it was a trial to which no General could long to subject his troops They presently swerved a little from that line of advance and there was no longer a continuous column of infantry pouring out of those woods The attack of the Prussians in the center was nearly checked

About five o'clock however another brigade of fresh infantry was again formed in the wood and emerged from its cover Once out from under the trees they advanced at quick time I watched the movement for the French guns had not lost the range of the wood nor of the ground in front Seen at a distance through a powerful glass the brigade was like a huge serpent beginning with the undulation of the field, but it left a dark track behind it, and the glass resolved the dark track into falling and dying men As the horrid significance of that path so traced came upon me I gazed on it more intently Many of those who had fallen leaped up again and ran forward a little way as if longing to go on with the column Of those who fell backwards instead of forward there were a few though many fell as they painfully endeavored to follow the advance

I do not know whether after the rain movement of that brigade another movement was attempted from the road but half an hour afterwards great numbers of troops began to march forward toward the field where so hard a struggle had been so long protracted There were I think a portion of Gen Goeben's troops who had been directed on a direct route The conflict from this point on the Prussian left became so fierce it was soon almost lost Now and then a thick cloud would open a little and drift away on the wind and then we could see the French

I tried to get a better view of this part of the field I went forward about a half a mile and from my new stand found myself not far from Almazin The French line was still unbroken and to all appearances they were having the best of the battle but the appearance was due perhaps to the fact that the French were visible on their broad height and were fighting with such obstinacy that they plainly silenced a Prussian battery now and then

But the Prussian line was also strengthened by degrees On the northern point infantry and artillery were brought up and from far in the rear away seemingly in the direction of Thionville, shot and shell reached the French ranks These were the men and guns of Steinmetz who formed a junction with the army of Prince Frederick Charles and completed the investment of Metz to the northwest.

With the reinforcements that continually arrived on both sides the battle grew more and more obstinate There could be no doubt that the French understood the meaning of the new movement of the Prussians and of the gradual development of the line to Metz, and that they were able to extend their line gradually further and further until the French were outflanked and began to be threatened as it appeared with an attack on the rear of their extreme right So long as the smoke from the Prussian guns hovered only over their front the French clung to their position

The distance from the headquarters where the Prussian flank attacks stretched forward was great and to add to the difficulty of seeing the progress of the battle darkness came on

I know not how long the French held out, nor at what precise moment the Prussian onset became irresistible. What I saw was this the puffs of smoke from the French guns with flashes brightening as the darkness increased receded as the very thick pillar of cloud and flame from the north gradually and steadily approached and with that advance the fire every moment became more slack

It was not far from 9 o'clock when the ground was finally yielded on the north The last shots fired on that terrible evening were heard in that direction

The Battle of the 16th.

THIRTY MILES OF GROUND COVERED WITH THE DEAD AND WOUNDED—THE FRENCH DEFEATED—THEY RETIRE TO BRIEY

A correspondent describes the scene of battle of the 16th as one seldom witnessed Thirty miles of ground were covered with the dead and wounded of both sides The cannonade from the German side and the rattle of the needle guns were terrific The defeat of the French was total Their long columns could be seen to be pushing toward the north to evade pursuit by Briey The loss on both sides was enormous Many French prisoners were taken

The King himself was attentive to the French wounded

A French peasant was taken while killing a wounded German, and was hanged at Goize Out of 1000 inhabitants of the neighborhood, scarcely any remained

The Battle of the 14th

A BLOODY ENGAGEMENT—THE FRENCH RETIRING—450 000 GERMAN TROOPS IN THE BATTLE—THE FRENCH DRIVEN TO THE WALLS OF METZ

The battle of the 14th is described as hardly less bloody than that at Sadowa.

In the morning a party of Germans had pushed forward on the position of the French, who retired as they advanced The French subsequently received strong reinforcements and intrenched themselves behind the city at a distance of two or three miles in the circle including the villages of Bonney Colaborg, Montay, Nasserille and Noiller

On the side of the Germans there were encamped in the immediate neighborhood the Seventh and First Army Corps which, with the Eighth Army Corps which was farther to the rear along the way from St. Avold to Metz, formed the First Army under Steinmetz which was the extreme right of the German combined armies The number of German troops actually in the battle was 450 000 The French had a great deal of artillery and cavalry

The Germans carried all the breastworks against a murderous fire of the French who were always compelled to retire before them, but the murderous fire of the Chassepots told very severely on the Germans, who in the engagement lost many more than the French It was the superior courage of the Germans which compelled the enemy to retire They did this slowly, contesting every inch of ground until they were driven almost against the walls of Metz Every account agreed that the battle was more sanguinary than any during the campaign of 1866 No unwounded prisoners were taken on either side

THE TERRITORIES

A Montana paper says A man named Thompson of Frenchtown is now roaming the woods and fields of Missoula a raving maniac His malady is of a dangerous order he goes armed, has shot at several men and threatens to kill all who approach him A reward of $100 is offered for his capture

James Byrnes who has been employed as cook on the steamer Mary Moody died very suddenly at Spokane Bridge on the 16th inst from heart disease He is believed to have been a native of Pittsburg Penn and was formerly employed on the O S N Co's boats on the upper Columbia river

The grape crop in Walla Walla valley this year is very large and the Statesman hears that the experiment of making wine is about to be commenced on an extensive scale J M Abadie a native of the wine district of France and thoroughly acquainted with the business, has a large crop of grapes, the greater portion of which he will convert into wine

From the Walla Walla Statesman We have already referred to the fact that several parties had introduced machinery for the manufacture of sorghum syrup and that hereafter the business in this valley would be conducted on an extensive scale Among those who have engaged in this enterprise we have the firm of Brown & Shell, and from the latter we learn that this firm will soon have a supply of this syrup in market when our people will have a chance to obtain the home product article

CITY.

THE MURDER [illegible] GRANDE RIVER.—Two or three days since a report reached here by way of Walla Walla that the body of a murdered man had been found by the Indians on Spokane river. We sought the news at the [illegible] unable to learn any of the particulars [illegible] murder or even who he was [illegible] connected either with the firm of [illegible] been engaged in the collection of Government revenue. Mr Oppenheimer [illegible] in this city [illegible] the matter and know of [illegible] concerning it in any manner with Mr Oppenheimer [illegible] who was traveling in that country [illegible] The Walla Walla [illegible] of Saturday has the following particulars from Mr [illegible] who has just come down from [illegible] some two weeks previous to finding the body a couple of miners had come down from Colville with their pack animals and traveling [illegible] the neighborhood of where the body was found [illegible] A few days subsequently one of the men [illegible] missing and the remaining man being asked where [illegible] he replied that he had gone down the [illegible] The man afterwards disappeared with his animals and camp equipage but whether he crossed the Spokane or not is unknown The body of the murdered man was subsequently discovered by Indians in a deep creek distant about 15 miles from the Spokane Bridge where it had been thrown for concealment When found the head and shoulders were wrapped in an India rubber blanket and the balance of the body in an ordinary wool blanket the whole tied around with a rope and a weight attached for the purpose of sinking the body The only injury found was by a blow on the head which had crushed the skull, and evidently caused death The deceased was dressed in a dark pair of pants cassimere shirt and had light hair and moustache When found the body was very much decayed so much so that it was difficult to form any idea of the features As near as they could judge the body was that of a man 25 years of age and of full size The murder is supposed to have been committed ten or twelve days before the body was found The impression now is that the two miners described above had quarreled and in the difficulty one of them was killed Who they were or where the surviving man has gone is shrouded in mystery

The Life Sustaining Principle

The vital and the muscular systems are entirely distinct from each other A man may have the brawn of a Hercules but if he is deficient in the vital energy he will not wear as well or last as long or be as healthy and happy while he does last as the man of ordinary or even slender build who possesses a larger share of this animating principle One of the greatest recommendations of that pure vegetable invigorant Hostetter s Stomach Bitters is that it increases the vital force of the system No medicine can double the volume of a man s muscle or thicken and vulcanize his thews and sinews; but Hostetter s Bitters has an effect more important Its use promotes constitutional vigor It reinforces the life power of which bone and sinew and muscle are merely the instruments holding the same relation to it that machinery does to steam Let the slight and apparently fragile take heart they may have more stamina though far less physical strength than the broad shouldered athletes they regard with envy To restore to sustain to increase this stamnal principle which when in full supply is the source of health and the best guarantee of longevity is a special property of the famous restorative It is not only a specific for dyspepsia, biliousness intermittent fevers constipation, &c and a preventive of all diseases of a malarious character but the best of all medicines for strengthening the constitution and awakening the powers of nature from whatever cause they may have become lethargic

A VOICE FROM NORTH PARK

Editor Oregonian

Mr Wide Awake parades his protest against further improvements at the expense of the city in the First Ward A few erroneous statements and inferences call for correction and notice Not one foot of sidewalk has been laid at the expense of the city on North Park or North West Park streets Further no grading of streets in the Park was commenced by the city until months after all the sidewalks had been laid and after all the peoples half of the streets had been graded and unanimous petition after petition had been presented to the City Fathers asking them to improve their part so that the people could have their groceries brought to their doors otherwise than on the backs of men But Mr Wide Awake calls on the city to improve the Park in the Second and Third Wards before the people have themselves shown enough public spirit to even lay a board on the streets to walk upon let alone petitioning the Common Council He says

It appears thus far that all expenditures of a public character have been made in the north end of the city Who has spent thousands of dollars in improving the Plaza? Who built that nice fence and laid the sidewalks and graded the streets around Market Square in the Third Ward? Wide Awake has just come among us or he would have known of the $450 that the shade trees alone in the Plaza cost the city Yet no money has been expended for public improvements in the Second and Third Wards! But we are not opposed to the purchase (at a reasonable price) and improvement of Park Row We will gladly so will nine tenths of the property holders in the city sign petitions to the Council for the improvement of any public grounds where the people residing in the vicinity show their public spirit by taking the lead in this matter But for the city to improve the Park so that people owning dozens of unimproved blocks assessed at a nominal value can sell them at $10 000 to $20 000 each I for one enter my solemn protest Let the citizens living in any particular vicinity improve then place their petition in the Post Office for every property holder to affix his name, and we from North Park will come forward en masse and say buy and improve NORTH PARK

The following extracts from the Oregonian and Bulletin will convey a good idea of the plan and workings of the Association the location of the land etc etc

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION

This association of whose organization we gave an account a few days since is now ready to dispose of shares As it is with one exception (the Portland Homestead Association) the pioneer organization of that kind in this city it may be well enough to state what are its purposes and the manner in which it is proposed to conduct its operations The purposes of these Homestead Associations are not at all speculative in the ordinary sense of the word They are dependent for the profits of their investment upon the natural advance in the value of their lands consequent upon the co operation of many individuals —shareholders—and the advance on values of all surrounding lands by reason of the expansion of population and demand for room outside of but still near the city The Riverside Homestead Association has a fraction over one hundred and twenty acres of land situated just south of Brooklyn on the east side of the river the nearest boundary line being about one mile from the ferry landing at East Portland The tract lies in one strip along the Wallamet river half a mile in length and another strip along the Oregon and California railroad half a mile in length the two strips being connected near the middle by two rows of blocks (with a street between them) the whole forming a figure not unlike the letter H It is divided into 74 blocks 200 feet square (with streets running at right angles) and 80 fraction al lots along the river front The shares number 600, worth $60 per share It will be seen that a share thus represents nearly a lot with an undivided interest in the 80 fractional lots The 80 fractional shares are to be sold off at the proper time for the benefit of the Association, shareholders coming in for the proceeds in proportion to the number of shares held When all shares are taken and the Association shall determine to do it the choice of lots and blocks will be put up at auction to the highest bidder the proceeds of such sales after deducting the original price of shares or lots to be divided equally among the whole number of shares Thus if a person wants a particular lot or block and is willing to pay $100 or $300 premium (more or less as the case may be) he pays it and takes the lot or block as his individual property the premium being divided among the whole number of shareholders It will be seen therefore that everything is co operative, and all interests mutual No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other equal shareholder There is no chance for loss unless the property by some chance should depreciate far below the first actual cost Whether this is liable to happen in the case of this particular tract of land must be judged by each for himself but considering the steady and unprecedentd advance on real estate in this city and neighborhood and at East Portland and vicinity for the last year or two, it seems hardly possible for values to go back

In the Riverside Association all proper precautions seem to have been taken to guard against monopolies of shares No person is allowed to buy more than the number of shares representing three blocks, or twenty four lots and votes determining the operations of the Association are restricted in the same manner The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share, which will exempt them from all assessments or they may pay $15 quarterly with an assessment of $3 per share payable with the first installment being liable in this latter case to another (and only one other) assessment of $3 per share Upon the payment of the shares in full with the assessments as above the holder is entitled to his certificate and his proportion of all the profits accrued from all sources No officer of the Association receives any pay for services except the Secretary who gets $25 per month so it will be seen that the expenses must be light

That part of the tract lying along the river is a high plateau nearly level about 60 feet above the water There is no part of the front row of blocks but commands a splendid view of Portland and the river for miles up and down stream That part of the tract lying along the railroad is every foot of it of the richest loam soil and adapted to gardening purposes A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through almost the entire length of this wing of the tract affording the means of irrigation and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract There is not a waste lot or fractional lot in the entire tract Under all these advantages, it would seem impossible that there should be any chance of loss to shareholders Within a year each shareholder, if he choose, may get a perfect title to as many lots as his shares may represent or he may continue his interest undivided with the Association while the organization may exist —Oregonian

THE RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION

We have been led to make these remarks from the fact that the subject of making homesteads on the outskirts of this city and East Portland is being thoroughly discussed here among all classes and one homestead—the Riverside just south of East Portland has already been established The site selected is a tract of land lying a little over a mile south of the ferry landing It is shaped like the letter H one side of which a half mile in length borders on the river

From this portion of the homestead which is elevated but a trifle above the other prong of the H but is still forty or fifty feet above the river, can be had an extensive view of Portland East Portland the shipping and the Willamette river for several miles The land is very fertile and is partly covered with light timber A tract of land just wide enough for two rows of blocks with an avenue between them connects the west prong of the H (which has already been described) with that on the east The last tract of land is a portion of a little valley which is now under a high state of cultivation Through its whole length runs a fine trout brook the water of which is clear as crystal With a hydraulic ram the Association proposes to have water conveyed through pipes to every portion of the homestead —Daily Bulletin

CITY.

REPORT OF SPOKANE RIVER.—Two or three days since a report reached here by way of Walla Walla, that the body of a murdered man had been found by the Indians on Spokane river. The man who brought the news to Walla Walla was unable to learn any of the particulars of the murder, save that the name of the man save that he was on his way down from Colville and had been connected either with the firm of Oppenheimer & Co., or had been engaged in the collection of Government revenue. Mr. Oppenheimer is known in this city. They have not received any news concerning the matter and know of no one connected in any manner with Mr. Oppenheimer who was traveling in that country.

The Walla Walla Statesman of Saturday has the following particulars from Mr. Se h l who has just come down from Spokane. Some two weeks previous to finding the body a couple of miners had come down from the north with their pack animals and traveling and had camped in the neighborhood of where the body was found. Neither of the men is known. A few days subsequently one of them was missing and the remaining man replied where he was replied that he had gone on the prairie. This man afterwards went on with his animals and camp equipage but whether he crossed the Spokane or not is unknown. The body of the murdered man was originally discovered by Indians in a creek distant about 15 miles from the Spokane Bridge, where it had been thrown for concealment. When found the head and shoulders were wrapped in an India rubber blanket and the balance of the body in an ordinary wool blanket, the whole tied around with a rope and a weight attached for the purpose of sinking it. The only injury found was by a blow on the head, which had crushed the skull and must have caused death. The deceased was dressed in dark pair of pants cassimere shirt and had light hair and moustache. When found the body was very much decayed so much so that it was difficult to bury the remains. As near as could be judged, the body was that of a man of middle age, and of full size. The murder is supposed to have been committed ten or twelve days before the body was found. The inference is, that the two miners described above had quarreled, and in the difficulty one of them was killed. Who they were or where the survivor has gone, is shrouded in mystery.

BATES' BENEFIT.—Mr. F. M. Bates benefit takes place at Oro Fino Theater to-night. In the programme we find the names of all the company and a number of volunteers in the Apollo and 23d Infantry Bands. The performance will consist of the drama of "Cock Robin, or the Mexican Bride," and the comedy of "The Maid of Croissey." The cast of these pieces insures a good performance.—Mr. Bates in the first piece personates Jack Ragget. Abel Tinkle, Mr. E. Tinkle; Miss Annie Pix, Miss Lizzie Ingles; Robin Brittle, Nancy Pottles Miss C . The 23d Infantry Band to be followed by the duet Annie and Minnie; Little Lucy song and dance, Sal (new); Miss Minnie ballad; Fairy Dreams Miss Annie song and dance. The performance for the evening ends with the popular comedy of "Tuesday," with the cast as follows: with ballads Miss Annie Pix; Miss Minnie Pixley; Sir Law Pompey, J H Vinson; Charles Para; "Sam R. Clinton.

REED'S OPERA HOUSE.—One of the oldest and building firms of this city has the contract for finishing Reed's Opera House and the Chemeketa Hotel, at Salem. The former is now nearly completed. The Statesman says: "Mr. Reed has a number of plasterers engaged on the rooms in the second and third stories, and a large number of rooms are finished in the finest of style. By the end of this week there will be sixty rooms par... finished, completed and ready to ... The contract to furnish the building has been taken by Messrs Hurgren & Shindler, of Portland, who will have the rooms in readiness for guests within the shortest possible time. Messrs. H. & S. assure us that they will furnish this building and the new Commercial Hotel when done, in a style superior to any similar house on the coast."

THE CIRCUS.—The Pavilion was again crowded to its capacity last evening to witness one of the best performances ever presented in Portland. From the moment of the grand entry down to the last scene in the lions' cage the entire audience manifested their approval of every act by frequent bursts of hearty applause. The riding was brilliant, while the feats on the trapeze as well as the tumbling by the several acrobats were excellent. The performances of Mr. Smith's beautiful trick ponies were the best it has ever been our pleasure to witness. The acting of the Clown and his horse "Jan" kept the audience wild with enthusiasm. In connection we may add that all the sayings of the Clown were received with great applause. The Company will give another performance this evening at 8 o'clock.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—DEADY JUDGE.—Monday, August 29th.

I. H. Adams vs. George T. Myers assignee of Levi Estes, bankrupt; an agreed case and submitted to the Court without argument. The plaintiff sues to recover of the assignee the value of wheat delivered to said bankrupt prior to the filing of his petition in bankruptcy, claiming that the wheat was only entrusted to the said bankrupt as a warehouseman, he is entitled to recover from the estate the full value thereof.

ANOTHER LOCOMOTIVE.—The Oregon and California Railroad Company have now five first class engines—the J. B. Stephens, Portland, Oregon, Clackamas and Albany—the last having been brought up by the Live Yankee. It is still aboard that vessel but will be landed in a day or two. The Albany is of the same class as the others and, from the Baldwin Locomotive Iron Works, Philadelphia, weighs with tender forty tons.

EXPENSIVE RIDE.—Some of the circus boys took a buggy ride on Sunday which turned out to be an expensive affair. The horses ran away with the boys out all along for a quarter of a mile, smashed the buggy into smithereens and ruined the harness etc. etc. Yesterday morning the boys found their bill footed up about $200.

AN APPEAL.—It is said that the O. S. N. Co. will appeal from the decision of the Board of ... in the case of J. Lowenberg vs the O. S. N. Co. The decision was the first rendered by the Board. The award was $625 damages for failure to perform a freighting contract.

THE "BURR" ARRIVED.—The H ... arrived up last evening by the steamer T..., and has on board another locomotive for the O. & C. Railroad—the sixth first-class locomotive.

SOCIABLE.—The ladies of the M. E. Church Building Fund will hold their monthly sociable in the church basement this evening. A general invitation is extended to the public.

LAYING OF A CORNER STONE.—The corner stone of the new Congregational Church will be laid at the corner of Jefferson and Second streets to-day, August 30th, at 2 o'clock P. M.

MILL MACHINERY.—The Wallamet Iron Works shipped last week the complete machinery for a flouring mill, to Mr. Abel Aglow, Dixie, Polk county.

THE RAILROAD.—We learn that it is expected the track of the Oregon and California Railroad will be laid to Lake La Biche this week.

WAGONS.—We noticed yesterday on the P. T. Co.'s wharf, a considerable lot of eastern made wagons, to be shipped to Salem.

The Life Sustaining Principle

The vital and the muscular systems are entirely distinct from each other. A man may have the brawn of a Hercules, but if he is deficient in the vital principle, he will not wear as well or last as long or be as healthy and happy as the man of slender frame who possesses a large share of this animating principle. One of the greatest recommendations of that pure vegetable invigorant Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is that it increases the vital force of the system. No medicine can double the volume of a man's muscle or harden and strengthen his sinews, but Hostetter's Bitters has an effect upon the vital energies. Its use promotes constitutional vigor. It supplies the life power which ... and a new ... merely that its ... holds the same relation to the human body that machinery does to steam. Let the sickly and up... naturally fragile take heart; they may have more stamina than they thought, for physical strength that the robust ... and others they regard with envy. To restore to sustain it increase this stamina principle which when in full supply is the source of health and the best guarantee of longevity is a special property of the famous restorative. It is not only a specific for dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent fevers, constipation &c, and a preventive of all diseases of a malarious character, but the best of all medicines for strengthening the constitution and awakening the powers of nature from whatever cause they may have become lethargic.

A VOICE FROM NORTH PARK

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

Mr. "Wide Awake" parades his protest against further improvements at the expense of the city in the First Ward. A few erroneous statements and inferences call for correction and notice. Not one foot of sidewalk has been laid at the expense of the city on North First or North West Park streets. Further, no grading of streets in the Park was commenced by the city until months after all the sidewalks had been laid and after all the people's half of the streets had been graded and unanimous petition after petition had been presented to the City Fathers asking them to improve their part so that the people could have their groceries brought to their doors otherwise than on the backs of men. But Mr. "Wide Awake" calls on the city to improve the Park in the Second and Third Wards before the people have themselves shown enough public spirit to even lay a board on the streets to walk upon, let alone petitioning the Common Council. He says:

"It appears thus far that all expenditures of a public character have been made in the north end of the city. Who has spent thousands of dollars in improving the Plaza? Who built that nice fence and laid the sidewalks and graded the streets around Market Square in the Third Ward?" "Wide Awake" has just come among us or he would have known of the $150 that the shade trees alone in the Plaza cost the city. Yet no money has been expended for public improvements in the Second and Third Wards! But we are not opposed to the purchase (at a reasonable price) and improvement of Park blocks. We will gladly—so will nine tenths of the property holders in the city—sign petitions to the Council for the improvement of any public grounds where the people residing in the vicinity show their public spirit by taking the lead in this matter. But for the city to improve the Park so that people owning dozens of unimproved blocks assessed at a nominal value can sell them at $ 000 to $ 0 000 each I for one enter my solemn protest. Let the citizens living in any particular vicinity improve, then place their petition in the Post Office for every property holder to affix his name and we from North Park will come forward en masse and say buy and improve.

NORTH PARK.

SECURE A HOME!!

THE RIVERSIDE

HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION!

OF

EAST PORTLAND, OREGON

IS NOW PREPARED TO RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS to their Stock

Application for ONE HUNDRED SHARES ... of Shares have been taken

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION

This association of whose organization we gave an account a few days since is now ready to dispose of shares. As it is with one exception the Portland Homestead Association, the pioneer organization of that kind in this city, it may be well enough to state what are its purposes and the manner in which it is proposed to conduct its operations. The purposes of these Homestead Associations are not at all speculative in the ordinary sense of the word. They are dependent for the profits of their investment upon the natural advance in the value of their lands consequent upon the co-operation of many individual shareholders—and the advance on values of all surrounding lands by reason of the expansion of population and demand for room outside of but still near the city. The Riverside Homestead Association has a fraction over one hundred and twenty acres of land situated just south of Brooklyn on the east side of the river, the nearest boundary line being about one mile from the ferry landing at East Portland. The tract lies in one strip along the Wallamet river half a mile in length and another strip along the Oregon and California railroad half a mile in length, the two strips being connected near the middle by two rows of blocks (with a street between them), the whole forming a figure not unlike the letter H. It is divided into 74 blocks 200 feet square with streets running at right angles, and 80 fractional lots along the river front. The shares number 600, worth $60 per share. It will be seen that a share thus represents nearly a lot with an undivided interest in the 80 fractional lots. The 80 fractional shares are to be sold off at the proper time for the benefit of the Association shareholders coming in for the proceeds in proportion to the number of shares held. When all shares are taken and the Association shall determine to do so, the choice of lots and blocks will be put up at auction to the highest bidder, the proceeds of such sales after deducting the original price of shares or lots to be divided equally among the whole number of shares. Thus if a person wants a particular lot or block and is willing to pay $100 or $500 premium (more or less as the case may be) he pays it and takes the lot or block as his individual property, the premium being divided among the whole number of shareholders. It will be seen therefore that everything is co-operative and all interests mutual. No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other equal shareholder. There is no chance for loss unless the property by some chance should depreciate far below the first actual cost. Whether this is liable to happen in the case of this particular tract of land must be judged by each for himself, but considering the steady and unprecedented advance on real estate in this city and neighborhood and at East Portland and vicinity for the last year or two it seems hardly possible for values to go back.

In the Riverside Association all proper precautions seem to have been taken to guard against monopolies of shares. No person is allowed to buy more than the number of shares representing three blocks or twenty four lots, and votes determining the operations of the Association are restricted in the same manner. The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share which will exempt them from all assessments, or they may pay $15 quarterly with an assessment of $3 per share payable with the first installment, being liable in this latter case to another (and only one other) assessment of $3 per share. Upon the payment of the shares in full with the assessments as above the holder is entitled to his certificate and his proportion of all the profits accrued from all sources. No officer of the Association receives any pay for services except the Secretary, who gets $25 per month, so it will be seen that the expenses must be light.

That part of the tract lying along the river is a high plateau nearly level about 60 to 80 feet above the water. There is no part of the front row of blocks but commands a splendid view of Portland and the river for miles up and down stream. That part of the tract lying along the railroad is every foot of it of the richest loam soil and adapted to gardening purposes. A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through almost the entire length of this wing of the tract affording the means of irrigation and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract. There is not a waste lot or fractional lot in the entire tract. Under all these advantages it would seem impossible that there should be any chance of loss to shareholders. Within a year each shareholder if he choose may get a perfect title to as many lots as his shares may represent, or he may continue his interest undivided with the Association while the organization may exist.—Oregonian.

THE RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION

We have been led to make these remarks from the fact that the subject of making homesteads ... the city and East Portland ... thoroughly discussed ... all ... homestead ... the Riverside, just south of East Portland, has already been established. The site selected is a tract of land lying a little over a mile south of the ferry landing. It is shaped like the letter H, one side of which, a half mile in length, borders on the river.

August 29 1870

Gentlemen of the Graduating Class It is the office of the schools to develop and discipline the faculties of the mind and give the student that control over his mental powers which will enable him to accumulate knowledge These advantages you have enjoyed To night ends your school boy days and as you are about to leave these halls, are saying farewell to tutors and professors and are ready to separate from each other each to take his own path in life I come from the practical walks of that profession to which your lives are to be voted to welcome you at the threshold to give you the right hand of fellowship and bid you God-speed in your attempt to master our complicated American jurisprudence, and thus to become valiant champions of law and faithful priests in the temple of justice

This is to you the most trying painful, and critical period of your whole lives, and the next ten years will assure your success or seal your doom, as lawyers You have already formed and matured your character as students you are now to hew out your own statue and carve your fortunes in the profession Thus far you have been assisted by friendly and almost paternal solicitude when you have faltered or stumbled in the ascent gentle hands have guided and lifted you over your difficulties, until you plainly see the way before you, and are thoroughly qualified to walk therein

In the proper stage of their development the lioness leads her young into the wilderness and there leaves them alone and the gnawings of hunger, the pelting of pitiless storms, and the desolation of absolute savageness, are the incentives which drive them on to become monarchs of the forest So your teachers have led you to the field of your life efforts, they have taught you the duties, and show you the prizes of the profession, they have given you the necessary training, and here they must leave you, each one to himself Your future is your own and you alone must answer for its failures or its successes And whether you ought to be congratulated or sympathized with on your choice of a calling, depends entirely upon the stuff you are made of. The path before you is steep rugged, and thorny. Your temptations will be great, your toil prodigious, your success uncertain But here, where the roads divide, you should choose at once and forever between the objects of conflicting ambitions If you are fired with a desire to attain great eminence in your profession, if you consent to days of toil and nights of anxiety, if you are willing to wait, and labor unfalteringly while you wait for the long deferred fruits of hope if you have a courage which can survive many disappointments and much disaster if you can bear to see your associates outstrip you in the accumulation of wealth and political honors if you can endure to see your younger brother lead his bride to the altar, while yours all wooed and won, is waiting for you to attain success, if, in a word, you have that dying ambition and immortal energy to 'bear the constant anguish of patience,' and labor forever, then, sir you make a lawyer, and your profession will offer you prizes worthy the contention of gods But if this picture be too dark, the reality, which will be darker yet will prove too much for you, and I bid you turn back at once into gentler more immediately profitable, and infinitely more comfortable pursuits, and waste no more time coquetting with a profession which will not benefit you, and which you will only harm and dishonor

But to you, who counting the cost, still resolve, I desire to make a few plain and practical suggestions You are supposed to be as full of theory as is consistent with your mental health, and the question immediately before you is, what to do So I shall not attempt to burden you with elaborate disquisitions, but tell you a few things that I feel would have been beneficial to me, when, like, you, I was ready to go forth and struggle in the great tasks of life

The first, and a very important matter to be determined, is location This question, in general, is very easy to be decided, for I assume that every one of you, who has sufficient enterprise to succeed at all, will immediately bend his steps towards the West or South. If you are poor, and I hope you are—for I regard that as an almost indispensable condition of your success—the expense of living in the large cities of the East will drive you into the current of empire westward or the South, which now released from the incubus of slavery, is destined to unparalleled prosperity within the next quarter of a century. At all events, leave Washington, where a man is estimated according to the place he is in; and not according to the qualities that are in him; let not the grass grow under your feet, nor the sun set upon your going, but flee this town as the beloved of the Lord fled the cities of the plain Select some town which will grow, and grow with it, some town where the hammer and the saw are constantly heard, and the harmony of various industry will cheer you on If you find the right place, it is no objection that many lawyers are already there. That fact merely attests the existence of business and it is a business place you desire to find There may be a thousand lawyers in a city but a score of the best of them will do all that business which the real lawyer loves to do the next hundred will be engaged in preparing business, the balance will be the raiders and bummers of the profession, skirmishing for subsistence, as opportunity offers within or without the lines Having fixed on the town, select an office and furnish it comfortably with the first money you earn, but first of all, immediately store it with all the books you can borrow the money to buy

The statutes and reports of your adopted State and the best elementary works will, of course, be indispensable Next, buy the New York reports which will furnish you with ingeniously reasoned cases on every side of every question, and then, to relieve a little the bewilderment of the inexperienced mind, tossed to and fro by reading New York decisions, you will need the sobering influence and steady support of the Massachusetts reports, and then—if any part of the constitution of the United States be left you will need the decisions of the Federal Courts Next, and before the reports of other States I would buy all the English Common Law and Chancery reports and continue them with the present series, bringing the decisions of the English courts within a few weeks after their actual delivery Then you want the English Statutes and State Trials and then the reports of the American States not before procured

You should also be purchasing pari passu and as fast as possible all those works which belong to the border land between literature and the law the best treatises upon the science of politics and of government, constitutional histories English and American, especially you should have and know by heart Lewis on the Reasonings and Methods in Politics, Austin on the Province of Jurisprudence, together with the works of eminent English and American lawyers and statesmen —Burke, Sheridan Webster Calhoun etc etc—by no means neglecting the philosophers and poets, theology and history and be sure to have the best copies money will buy of Shakspeare and Waverley so that when the misfortunes of life multiply upon you and its clouds settle low when the courts by horrible blundering decide a good cause against you, which decided correctly, would have brought fame and fat fees when your landlord is impatient for rent and your heart cast down before the rugged realities of life you may restore your spirits in the sweet fields of innocent fiction and divine fancy

But, may be some of you have rich fathers If so, this misfortune may be lightened by an immediate understanding of the utmost cent he can furnish you for the next ten years Take this sum and invest all but five hundred dollars in books and take your seat in the next train that leaves for the West Wealth thus employed will not delay your progress And not to be hard on the rich I ought to say that a man with more money than can be easily invested in books, may become a lawyer A rich man may possibly enter into the kingdom of heaven so a rich man may possibly become a good lawyer but I always pity him when I think how fearfully the chances are against him

But to go back when you have selected your location, rented an office—a good lawyer never owns one—and gathered as many books as you can start with it is possible you will not be retained before breakfast the first day in more than fourteen cases Not to trouble you, I consult it with I say it is probable that for some time you will not have a case, and for a long time cases will not crowd upon you And it is to this period intervening between the school and the active labors of the bar that I desire to direct your minds This period will try your patience, your fortitude, your constancy and then you will lay deep and broad the foundations of great professional acquirements or prove yourselves unequal to the requirements of professional life Let these years of business be devoted to acquiring a thorough and ripe knowledge of the law for which your study thus far has only fitted you to strive

The most important suggestion I can make to you in this connection is to adopt some definite system of study Let your first act be to frame rules for your own conduct Determine how many and what hours of each day you will devote to exercise to study and to rest, respectively and then divide the hours of study systematically between different departments of jurisprudence For instance from ten to eleven each day read nothing but treatises and reports upon equitable jurisprudence From twelve to one to pleading, and practice and so on It is not so material what your method may be as that you should have a method and then adhere to your rules for one year and you will be astonished at the result The mind is relieved by variety of labor and strengthened by the habit of studying the same subject at the same hour of the day and under the same surrounding circumstances

Another suggestion Devote one hour each day, or two in every evening to reading the opinions of the most celebrated judges For example take the reports of the Supreme Court of the United States and turn to the first opinion delivered by Chief Justice Marshall, and then to his next, and so on until in this way you have read every opinion he ever delivered Mark the growth of his great mind as it steadily developed itself mark how honestly he reasons When you are half way through some of his opinions you will be enabled to see which way the case is to be decided, and you will be impressed with the belief that he did not, at that point even himself know whereto his reasoning would lead him, or which party, the plaintiff or the defendant, would be successful He commences with a clear statement of the facts next, in mathematical method he lays down the axioms or universally conceded principles applicable to the subject then he begins to reason turning the mill of his inexorable logic slowly and honestly, as if himself was anxious to see what would come out of it; and, finally that ascertained the case is thereby decided, and so decided that no man, recognizing the authority ever can question the correctness of the decision Take the opinions of Chief Justice Parsons, or Parker, or Shaw of Massachusetts or Kent or Spencer, of New York confining yourself to one until you have read, in the order in which they were delivered, every opinion he has written You will thus become almost personally acquainted with every judge you will learn his methods and his defects, if he has any and like a personal acquaintance, this will enable you years afterwards, in the confusion of a trial, to appreciate the just force and weight of an opinion from either of your favorites which your opponent will read against you when you have no opportunity to examine it in detail The opinions of Chief Justice Gibson thoroughly understood, would make any man a profound lawyer

But of all the judges, English or American, whose opinions are valuable to the student, Chief Justice Marshall stands pre-eminent If you will devote two hours of every evening for six months to his opinions you will master them all What a mine to bring into possession Study him especially Study his methods of reasoning, and make them your methods And while reading Marshall's opinions, as often as you come to a case that was argued by Mr Webster, study his argument study it first, and then go to Marshall's opinion in deciding the case, and see how much that you thought unanswerable in the argument found its way into the opinion Thus you will obtain pure gold refined by fire

I recollect reading, while a student, the argument of Mr Webster upon the question of the constitutionality of State insolvent laws, as fully reported in Mr Everett's edition of Mr Webster's works, and before I knew how the case was decided by the Supreme Court of the United States While reading the argument I was carried along captive through paragraph after paragraph, from proposition to proposition, and when I had finished it I never thought of looking to see how the case was decided because I would have made my affidavit that Webster's argument was wholly unanswerable, and of course the case must have been decided with him And when I found, a year or two later, that the Court decided the case the other way, I recollect that I lost confidence in human reasoning for the space of ten days. Nothing finally consoled my disappointment except the fact that the great Chief Justice dissented from the decision of the Court and canonized the argument of Mr Webster. But for this, I think I should have concluded that logic was an unsafe guide in the labyrinths of the law however, I satisfied the wounded pride of my boyish judgment by resolving that Webster and Marshall were greater authority than the rest of mankind combined, and that Webster was right, though he did not succeed

I have spoken thus far of the means by which you may best qualify yourselves for the labors and responsibilities which belong to active practice at the bar And although I have dwelt somewhat at length upon the difficulties to be surmounted by the student, hoping to impress upon you the importance of not assuming that you have now acquired your profession and have only to apply your present fund of knowledge to causes in which you may be retained nevertheless you are not to be discouraged With the fair average of ability, if you will pursue the methods I have indicated, you will rise to eminence in your profession and looking to the time when your fame will begin to brighten, and your retainers to multiply, I desire to make a few practical suggestions in regard to the conduct of causes by a young lawyer in the courts At first let me exhort you to give all your cases a thorough examination, and an elaborate preparation Your first case may only involve five dollars, and be ultimately determined by the wisdom of a justice of the peace Nevertheless it will involve the same principles and be beset by the same difficulties as a case growing out of the same state of facts involving five millions of dollars and pending in the Supreme Court of the United States To illustrate you may be retained to defend in a justice's court an action founded on a promissory note for fifty dollars, given by a man in New England to a creditor residing in New York just before your client failed and ran away to the far West, where he has resided in two or three different States It is not a principle of commercial law, relating to negotiable paper that may not be involved in your case The note may have been given upon usurious consideration or have been obtained by fraud, or duress and these questions are to be decided upon the same principles that would determine a case involving millions of dollars Your case too may involve the most difficult and complicated questions in the conflict of laws Whether the rate of interest is to be six per cent according to the law of the place where the note was given or the higher rate of interest of New York, where the creditor resided or if your client has resided in different States since giving the note you may have to examine the statutes of limitation in those States to ascertain whether he has resided in any one State long enough to make its statute a bar to the claim I remember one of the earliest cases I tried was of a note for forty dollars given under the following state of facts A resident of Massachusetts loaned money in that State to a resident of Wisconsin to be secured after my client should return to Wisconsin by mortgage upon land in that State The loan was usurious and the creditor subsequently came to Wisconsin and my client gave him this forty dollar note in part settlement of the original indebtedness and made the note payable in six months at Chicago with exchange on Boston The legal rate of interest in Massachusetts was six per cent in Wisconsin twelve per cent and in Illinois where the last note was payable ten per cent and it so happened that the statutes of these three different States provided three different penalties for the consequences of usurious transactions You can see that this case in a justice's court involved some of the most complicated and difficult questions that can ever arise in any case in any court

Now this is a long introduction to what I desire to say Take such a case with the leisure you will have on your hands and give it the proper preparation and you will accomplish several most important things First, you will fix in your mind with clearness many important legal principles which will remain with you as long as you live Second you will satisfy the court that you are in the habit of preparing your causes and thus gain greater consideration from the court And third and more important still you will acquire a facility for investigating legal questions which can only be acquired in that way and which will serve you to the end of your professional life Every successful lawyer who has been in practice for twenty years will tell you that he can go to his library now and examine more authorities and make more preparation of a cause in three hours than he could in three weeks when he commenced the practice In no other way than by preparing causes can you acquire this facility which is so indispensable to a lawyer in full practice It is to the mind what the cunning of the fingers is to the musical performer No man is born with it any man may acquire it

Be honest with the court I have said that you will be subjected to great temptations In your early causes you will be far more anxious and more interested to succeed than your client To him it may be ten dollars or fifty or a hundred or two with you it is success or failure the admiration or the contempt of the bystanders life or death professionally In this fearful anxiety you will be sorely tried and tempted to conceal your blunders by discoloring the facts and to win your cause no matter how I say you will be tempted to do this but I assume that you will have the manhood and integrity to rise above the temptation If not your failure at the bar is certain A man who has never been tempted may be honest merely but virtue in the profession or out of it is the fruit of temptation suffered but overcome Honesty is the best policy and no man sees this proverb illustrated so frequently and so vividly as the lawyer A trick or a falsehood may win a point or save a cause but it is certain of discovery and it will cost its author ten years of honest practice to allay the indignation it will incite in the breast of an honest judge

Be always deferential and respectful to the court Meet their rulings, no matter how adverse or erroneous with the true dignity of professional obedience But, while you are always respectful be always firm Courts are composed of judges judges are men men who dine out late of nights they come reluctantly at the summons of the court bell from an unfinished sleep they are overworked they are poorly paid and occasionally come to the bench in that impatient and petulant mood which "some meal hath its hour with every man" A judge in such a mood will whistle your case down the wind before he has heard the half of it Under such circumstances while you are to be courteous to the court you must be as firm as a rock The best recipe for obtaining your rights before an impatient judge is to acquire the art of clear and concise narrative In motions made and incidental questions arising in a cause half are decided erroneously, because the court does not understand the facts or the state of the record upon which the decision depends I think one of the great deficiencies of the profession, in daily practice is the want of this art To train yourselves in this particular study the best models of historic composition Take Kinglake's history of the Crimean war, for example, and read the one or two hundred pages in which he describes the charge of the light brigade at Balaklava Notice the innumerable incidents and trifling occurrences, and mark the consummate art with which they are so grouped and arranged as never to obstruct, but always to heighten the effect of the general narrative The facts of a case before a jury may be very voluminous and very complicated, and there is nothing which so severely taxes the skill of a master as to make every fact available, without so burdening the mind of the jury that they will forget the facts altogether The most trifling and insignificant fact which is yet important enough to be given in evidence should be brought to the mind of the jury in the argument of the cause, but the facts should be so marshalled with regard to subjects and order of time, that the jury can see the precise bearing of each In an argument to the jury the facts should be stated by chapter and verse, presented by scene and act as in Othello one of the most artistic of Shakespeare's plays where the least circumstance, even Desdemona's dropping her handkerchief, is made to contribute powerfully to the final and fatal catastrophe

Another important matter is the examination of witnesses I believe that more causes are lost from unskillful examination of witnesses than from all other species of mal practice combined Always know what your witness is called to prove direct his mind to that particular object get through as quickly as possible In cross examining witnesses if I were to lay down one, and an invariable rule it would be not to cross examine at all In nine cases out of every ten where a witness testifies against you your cross-examination will make a bad matter worse If you believe a witness is honest, and only mistaken treat him courteously, never touch his pride, nor put him on the defensive If you believe he is swearing falsely, go down upon him like an avalanche In ordinary cases never put a question in cross examination unless it be to call out some new fact favorable to you and even then I think you had better wait and call him as your own witness, and thus win his favor by showing confidence in his integrity and thus you will frequently get from him very comforting things

Be ever courteous to opposite counsel You will find all sorts of men at the bar It is with the profession as with the Church, the wheat and the tares grow together Your opponent may be a scamp, and you may know it but if in the particular cause he conducts himself like a gentleman treat him accordingly And above all things never break an oral stipulation It is well to be a little chary about making such stipulations and they never should be made except with a gentleman, because more may be claimed for them than you intend to grant

Never refuse a case because it will not pay a fee Remember you go forth to take your place in life and exercise in all the relations of society the influence of a learned and honorable profession It is your mission to uphold the right and overthrow the wrong and to the extent of your power to see to it that justice be done to every man

But some one who has listened thus far may wonder where in all this economy of professional life the money-making comes in This is a matter about which I think I ought to be perfectly frank, and in strict professional confidence, I will tell you what the fact is that with a good lawyer it never comes in at all It never comes into his mind it never distracts his thoughts it never usurps the throne of his soul If money making be your object in life [illegible] go to the marts of commerce [illegible] the east [illegible] contract for [illegible] blankets to the Indians Go anywhere do anything except [illegible] court to practice law Money [illegible] in the temple of justice But while money must be discarded as an object with the lawyer still some means it cannot wholly be disregarded and you must at least look after enough of the filthy dross to pay your bills No man can be honest who makes bills without the expectation of paying them, and, as Mr Webster once said that a good lawyer ought, when he died to leave neither a dollar nor a debt, and as I have quoted from Mr Webster I will quote from one of his friends Mr Choate, a remark as characteristic of him as it was descriptive of Mr Webster He once said to me while a student in his office in that half tragic, half comic manner which all who knew him so well remember my boy Mr Webster was a remarkable man his contempt for cash was equalled only by his contempt for credit is This was the defect in Mr Webster's character and a departure from his own maxim which I have just quoted Therefore it is safe to say you must make money enough to pay your bills

Save money if you can Money is power, and it may be employed to advance all the useful ends of life but how can you do this with all the appeals for charity that will come up around your path with young men [illegible] every hand soliciting material aid to acquire education and enter upon the arduous professions with the widows and orphans of the [illegible] war and with the [illegible] all [illegible] your hearts, your generosity and your [illegible] if you [illegible] know [illegible] meet somebody in sore [illegible] And yet the profession has its reward

[illegible] There sits a judge, whom I appoint as the lawyer's highest reward And even in this world the profession has its rewards Who would think of weighing gold against the gratitude [illegible] by your ability your courage and your fidelity from innumerable looms? You all remember how Mr Seward while at the bar with [illegible] braving the uproar of popular [illegible] defended a negro against the charge of murder on the plea of insanity which in the popular belief was a falsehood although the fact was subsequently verified by the death of the negro in an insane asylum This was years ago prior to the 13th the 14th and the 15th amendments to the Constitution and before the negro became an object of national justice and political affection Mr Seward has since passed through an eventful and illustrious career of public life during which he has sounded all the depths and shoals of honor and has finally retired to Auburn to collect his thoughts and compose his soul before leaving the shores of time to enter upon an eternal career beyond the celestial gates And methinks as he sits in that tranquil retreat looking out upon the uneasy and stormy world where restless mediocrity is rising to the surface to-day to sink out of sight to-morrow and looking back over the incidents of a busy life he would not exchange the recollection of the consciousness of duty performed in rescuing this unfortunate individual of a degraded race smitten with mental malady, and in peril of the prejudice the passions the rage of the populace more fearful than madness for the largest fee he ever received or for the memory of the proudest achievement of his political life This conspicuous act of professional bravery and charity will grow brighter and brighter through Mr Seward's mortal life and when he shall stand before the Son of Man at that fearful winnowing which shall separate the wheat from the chaff that awful judgment which shall forever divide the just from the unjust he may point to this act of his life which eighteen hundred years before it was performed received the Master's approbation

"Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand come ye blessed of my Father inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world for I was an hungered and ye gave me meat I was thirsty and ye gave me drink I was a stranger and ye took me in naked, and ye clothed me I was sick and ye visited me I was in prison and ye came unto me

Then shall the righteous answer him saying, Lord when saw we thee an hungered and fed thee? Or thirsty and gave thee drink? When saw we thee a stranger and took thee in? Or naked and clothed thee Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison and came unto thee?

And the King shall answer and say unto them Verily I say unto you inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me

I am detaining you too long but in addition to all the things I have admonished you to do I must warn you of one thing not to do, and I cannot do this in a more effectual way than to quote again from my Master whom I loved and almost adored, and who has long since gone to the reward which awaits an honorable career I recollect upon one occasion, when he had been counselling me as to the course to be pursued by a lawyer he said, with an emphasis and an energy which thrilled me through and through and through and which I shall never forget —'Keep out of politics Things have come to that pass when no man can mingle in American politics without sinking his self respect' You may say this advice comes with bad grace from myself, who have in some sense fallen before the great temptation Shakspeare tells us of a preacher who pointed his flock to the thorny path himself taking the primrose way The thorny path was the right way and the preacher gave his flock sound advice though he himself failed to practice and profit by it And if you have the slightest doubt of the soundness of the advice I have offered you wait till you have achieved a respectable position at the bar and then accept a seat in the Senate and I venture the prediction that your judgment will condemn your weakness as mine does my own In admonishing you to keep out of politics, of course I do not mean that you are to sink your manhood, or waive the participation which is the right and duty of every American citizen to exercise in influencing the course of political affairs What I mean is that you should avoid office-seeking and office holding The judicial positions of the country are open to the lawyer The courts of the States and of the Union must be filled by lawyers And if you cannot fail to occupy the highest position in American life an eminent place at the bar I beseech you to step on the bench and do not fall into the dirty pools of politics Should the American passion for ambition for place seize and master you let me point you to the highest the serenest the grandest seat in the Union the Chief Justiceship of the judicial department of the United States Who in a healthy mental condition would exchange the calm dignity of the Chief Justiceship for life to be tossed by politicians on an 'uneasy blanket' in the White House for four or eight years?

Gentlemen there is no limit to what you may suffer from a speaker without notes and I have indulged this license and have already trespassed upon you unreasonably And yet there is one subject I must mention in conclusion In the economy of Providence every generation has its peculiar duties trials triumphs The Church the only institution on earth of eighteen hundred years of historic unity has always had the wisdom to train its priesthood to meet imminent danger When infidelity attacked the truths of religion with facts developed by modern science the Church instructed its ministry in that specialty and when the assaults upon religion were made by verbal criticisms upon the text of the Gospel the Church sent forth its teachers specially instructed as to the intrinsic evidences of the Gospel's truth

You go forth to day young men strong and full of hope to discharge the duties and meet the responsibilities belonging to our profession [illegible] What then is the special evil which you shall be called to correct

We have but lately emerged from a fearful civil war which has inflamed the blood [illegible] the passions of the people During the war what was [illegible] tations Necessity is its own law and the manifest necessity of certain lines of governmental policy of doubtful legal and constitutional validity has naturally tended to create [illegible] the laws of which you go forth [illegible] defenders Some of you will be Democrats and some [illegible] Republicans As to all matters of [illegible] political economy and policy you [illegible] divided in opinion [illegible] but you are [illegible] over the slightest [illegible] the Constitution [illegible] you are the sworn champions of that Constitution and you must forget all political differences in rallying to its support [illegible] rallying to the defence of [illegible] its shrine and if the Constitution shall be [illegible] by its foes [illegible] turn upon you with [illegible] sharper than a thousand daggers [illegible] Brute
